THE NAME OF GROVER EVOKES WILD CHEERS

Democratic National Convention Now in Full Swing at St. Louis.

John Sharpe Williams, Temporary Chairman, Sounds
Key Note of Party.

PARKER CLAIMS VICTORY ON FIRST BALLOT

St. Louis, Mo., July 6.—The Democratic National Convention was called to order at 12:04 p. m. The balconies and galleries were filled, and the heat was almost oppressive.

Bryan entered at the head of the Nebraska delegation and was well received.

Prayer by Rev. John F. Cannon, of the Grand Avenue Presbyterian church, St. Louis, was followed by the election of John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, as temporary chairman.

John Sharpe Williams, of Mississippi, the temporary chairman, sounded the Democratic keynote. He devoted much spare time to replying to the speech of Temporary Chairman Root, of the Republican convention, and took issue with him on what the Republican party has accomplished, the tariff, etc., and also criticized President Roosevelt's administration mercilessly. He then turned his attention to the Republican platform, and pointed out what he called its weakness, and arranged the party for its attitude on the trusts. He denounced in the severest terms the "selective franchise" plank of the Republican platform, and threats to reduce the southern representation in the house of Representatives, and the electoral college. Referring to the Democratic party he said: "Democracy will nominate for president a man trained in the ways of the constitution, who will not usurp legislative or judicial functions, who will not keep the people guessing what he's going to do or say next. He will not falter when it comes to declaring for a reduction of the tariff, or taxation on trust-produced articles."

The first demonstration of the convention was when the name of Grover Cleveland was mentioned. The outburst was the greatest since the hosts gathered and continued for some time. The convention went into wild disorder and there were continued cries for Cleveland. Williams managed to proceed with his speech amid the din.

Chairman Williams' sarcastic references to President Roosevelt and Secretary Root was well received. It was when he announced that the Republicans had stolen Grover Cleveland's thunder that the convention went wild. Delegates got on chairs and waved coats and cheered. Mike Patton, a Tammany delegate helping the demonstration, got hysterical and had a fight with the sergeant-at-arms. Martin Patton was thrown out and his badge taken from his coat and thrown away. When Chairman Williams finished his speech amid the playing of "Dixie" other temporary officers were selected and committees were named, and the convention adjourned until noon Thursday.

The opposition to Judge Parker claim they will agree on a candidate tonight.

TELLER FOR PARKER
St. Louis, July 6.—Senator Teller the Democratic leader of Colorado, and for years the leading silver man in the United States senate, telegraphed Senator Thomas today expressing his preference for Judge Parker as the presidential nominee.

PARKER WILL WIN.
St. Louis, July 6.—The anti-Parkerites shot another bolt and missed the mark. Some among them yet refuse to believe it, but the end seems inevitable, and assurances that Judge Parker will be nominated on the first ballot are of a most positive character.

At party headquarters it was announced today that consideration of the nomination has passed, and the managers are now engaged in considering the convention details and the vice presidency and platform. The permanent chairmanship is also under discussion.

Ex-Senator Turner of Washington, is most dispensed for second place, but many believe the nomination will go to Wisconsin, Indiana or Illinois. Talk of permanent chairman has reverted to Senator Bailey of Texas.

BRYAN WORN OUT.
St. Louis, July 6.—There was a rumor this morning that Wm. Jennings Bryan was seriously ill. His brother said there was no truth in the report, that Colonel Bryan is only tired out. Bryan entered the hall before the convention opened and was given a hearty cheer.

NEBRASKA MAN IS HIS RUNNING MATE ON THE TICKET.

Springfield, Ill., July 6.—Thomas E. Watson, of Georgia, for president, and Thomas H. Tibbles, of Nebraska, for vice president, were nominated yesterday afternoon late by the Populist National Convention. There were only 200 delegates present to cast 1,000 votes, and there was a continual wrangle over almost everything that came before the convention.

A UNION NOW FOR STREET CAR MEN

Former Employees Alleged to Have Organized.

Officials of the Railway Company Says
No Street Car Employees Belong to It.

THE MEMBERSHIP UNCERTAIN

It is understood that a movement which has been on foot for some time past to organize a union of street car motormen and conductors in Paducah, has been successful.

According to apparently well founded rumors, it was some of the former street car employees who organized the union, and they will now attempt to get all the regular motormen into it. It is claimed that fully half the present motormen are already members of the union, but they are not disposed to talk about it and deny it. It is well known that the street railway company does not want its employees to form unions and when a union was organized some time ago, all the motormen who joined it were discharged, and a new "crop" secured. Some of these old motormen have never yet been taken back, and it is said that a number of them aided in getting up the present union. It is not known how large the membership is.

A street car official this morning admitted that a union had been formed, but declared that none of the street railway employees belonged to it. He stated that so far as his information went, the union was organized by a man discharged by the company for drinking, and who organized the union principally for his personal use in an effort to get back, or possibly to cause the company trouble. The street car company, the official affirmed, doesn't care how many unions ex-motormen organize.

CHURCH PROPERTY WILL BE SOLD SOON

Order Received to Dispose of Second Presbyterian.

Dr. S. B. Caldwell is Named as Special Commissioner to Make the Sale.

CLOSED FOR SEVERAL YEARS

Dr. S. B. Caldwell was this morning authorized to act as special commissioner, to sell the Second Presbyterian church property on South Fifth street, near Jackson, and will sell the property as soon as a purchaser can be found.

The sale was forced by a mortgage held by the Louisville Trust company as executor of the estate of Mrs. Fry. Mrs. Fry held mortgage on the property which is owned by the Kentucky Synod and the latter last night telegraphed authority to sell without litigation in order to enable the executor to settle the estate as easily as possible.

Dr. Caldwell will try to sell the property to some religious body to use as a mission church, or for some religious purpose. The property is not in good repair but could be fixed up with little expense if to be used for a church and is worth about $3,000.

This church has been closed for several years, its last minister being Rev. William R. Taylor, who left here about five years ago for Missouri, where he died several months later.

She was built ten years ago for the Missouri river trade and had been laying up here for ten days because of low water.

WITHOUT CAUSE SON KILLS FATHER

Details of Hern Tragedy Indicate Cold Blooded Murder.

Paducah Boy Shot His Aged Father Almost Without Warning.

ENDED THE FAMILY TRUCE

Further details of the killing of James Horn by his son, Mack Horn, of Paducah, are thus given in the Hopkinsville New Era:

"Papa, you have treated me bad," exclaimed Mack Horn as he fired a revolver at his father. The bullet entered James Horn's stomach inflicting a fatal wound.

A family quarrel of long standing resulted in the shooting. The victim was 56 years of age and a former policeman. He fought through the Civil war as a Confederate soldier. His son is about 26, and resides at Paducah, where he is employed in the I. O. railroad boiler works.

The feud yesterday morning ended in the older man slapping his son's face, and the boy left the saloon in a great rage.

His only explanation of the deed was the reiterated statement: "I would kill two fathers if they talked about my mother like he did." The weapon used was a 32 calibre Rembrand Arms Co. revolver.

Today Mack Horn, behind the bars, claimed that he killed his father in self-defense. "He had threatened to kill me," he said. "When I went to the door, last night, he rushed at me and said he would cut my throat. It was then I fired."

The coroner's jury returned a verdict that the deceased came to his death from a bullet wound, the shot fired by his son, but did not fix the responsibility.

CLARKSVILLE GETS FOURTH.
Paducah yesterday lost her fourth straight game to Clarksville, and if she loses today and Cairo wins, which seems extremely likely, Paducah will go to second place, and once there the fans haven't much hope of ever getting out of the rut.

A good crowd was out yesterday, but the locals were clearly outclassed. McGill had little support, six errors being made behind him. The summary is as follows:

It is reported that Umpire Shuster is going to be released. They ought to appoint Sherman or Violet as his successors, as they usually know better than the umpire.

HOPKINSVILLE SHUT OUT.

Cairo, Ill., July 6.—Hopkinsville was yesterday beaten by a score of 4 to 0, compensating somewhat for the defeat of the preceding day.

HENDERSON DEFEATED.
Vincennes, Ind., July 6.—Vincennes won a well played game yesterday.

Vincennes, 5-7-2; Henderson, 4-2-4. Todd, Whitley and Lemon; McNitt and Downing.

BASEBALL NOTES.

Setley doesn't deserve the deal he is getting in the papers. He may have made errors, but no one who knows Setley believes he intentionally gave anyone the worst of it. It's nothing but rot to try to condemn Paducah's team playing by laying it on Setley, and justifying a cowardly assault on him from behind by Paducah's catcher. Paducah fans would have their players at least not assault a man when his back is turned.

Sherman should gently break the news to Mr. Sherman that he isn't the whole cheese. If President Jackson wanted him to manage the Paducah team he would probably have told him so. If the K. I. T. team wanted him to umpire, it would probably have appointed him to succeed Setley. At present all expected of him is that he play second base.

O'Connor, who is playing a star game at third, will be a valuable acquisition to the Egyptians as soon as his batting is a little more certain.

He is batting fair at present but his fielding cannot be beat. He is not asleep or on the lookout for "grand stand" plays, but he's "up and gone."

He looks good to us.—Cairo Citizen.

Yes, that's what Paducah thought.

O'Connor's batting will not get "more certain."

It is reported that Umpire Shuster is going to be released. They ought to appoint Sherman or Violet as his successors, as they usually know better than the umpire.

Blah! got his.

Whoa, Pa-dook-y!—Cairo Bulletin.

Don't try to stop us. Get out of the way, Cairo, 'cause we're coming.

Gerard did not go with the team last night on account of business here but will leave tonight to meet the boys in Hopkinsville.

MORE DELAY

Street Car Transfers Not to be Given Yet.

Incomplete Street Paving Causes System to Be Deferred.

The Paducah City Railway company will not inaugurate the transfer system on its lines until the brick streets on Fourth street have been completed and 418 cars enabled to run through.

The contract with the city when the two franchisees were sold the street car company called for the inauguration of such a system at the expiration of two years after date of franchise sale, and this time has expired. It was expected to get it started the first of July and later on the 27th, tomorrow, but the line is now in great confusion owing to the incompleteness of the Fourth street paving.

COLORED BALL GAMES.

The Chattanooga colored baseball club will arrive this afternoon to play three games with Ben Boyd's local colored team. It is their first meeting, and is made the more interesting as both the Paducah and the Chattanooga teams have respectively defeated every club played this season.

If your pulse is too fast, or too slow; too strong or too weak; or too irregular; this is a sign of a weak heart. Refresh it with Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure.

The healthy pulse of a grown person should average 72 to 80 beats a minute. The heart should be regular pulsations—not too weak to be easily felt, not so strong as to be felt without some pressure of the skin.

You may not feel particularly sick, but any day, if your heart is weak, you are liable to some sudden seizure, fainting, palpitation, weak or irregular sleep, a sign of real danger.

Do not wait for such a moment to come, but treat your weakened heart and circulation with a safe and efficient, modern, scientific, specific remedy, such as Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure has proved itself to be.

It is a wonderful heart and blood tonic and will make the blood rich and the heart strong. It will do you good by strengthening and building up the nervous system and circulation.

For years I was troubled with pains around my heart, shortness of breath, palpitation and feeling of the heart, accompanied by the slightest exertion, such as fast walking, lifting, ascending a flight of steps, excitement or emotion. I have used only a few bottles of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, and entirely free from all these symptoms, and believe myself completely cured.

YOUNG'S COURT

MARSHALL COUNTY DOCTOR ACQUITTED OF CARRYING A PISTOL.

Dr. Newt Robertson, of Sharpe, Marshall county, was today acquitted in Justice Young's court of pointing a pistol at Mr. Will Hicks and several companions who were riding on the Benton road in an automobile several months ago.

It was alleged that Dr. Robertson pointed the pistol at them and threatened to shoot if they did not stop as he was afraid his horse would be frightened. No positive evidence was introduced and the physician was found not guilty by the jury.

This afternoon Justice Young will try the cases of Mollie Wood and Helie Milliken, colored, charged with breaches of the peace.

FIRST WARRANT

TO PREVENT THE OBSTRUCTION OF THE SIDEWALKS.

The first warrant to be issued, the result of the board of public works' determination to keep the pavements and streets clean of obstructions, was sworn out this morning against Frank Lawrence, the second hand dealer, for obstructing the pavement.

It is claimed that Lawrence keep on the pavement many kinds of second-hand articles leaving but little room for passage, and the police took out a warrant to test the case.

Other second-hand dealers who also use the sidewalks, have been notified that this practice must stop.

SUIT FOR DIVORCE.

Lula Johnson has filed suit against Hilee Johnson asking for a divorce on the grounds of abandonment. She asks $500 allowance for the support of their infant child. They were married in Tennessee in 1888 and she is alleged to have abandoned her in May 1898.

TRAINING OF A PRINCE.

Present King of Italy Was Starnly Brought Up.

Everybody who remembers the king of Italy as a lad should remember the name of Col. Odo, for many years his "governor." The prince of Naples, as the king was then called, was a very delicate boy and was treated by Col. Odo with almost Spartan severity, which was much criticised at the time. Nevertheless, the king cherished a kindly feeling for him, as was proved on the occasion of the birth of little Princess Yolande, by his conferring on his ex-governor the hereditary title of count, with the privilege of adding the pale blue of the house of Savoy to his coat of arms. The following anecdote illustrates Col. Odo's methods with his royal pupil: One day he received a request from a well-known personage for the autograph of the young prince, to be added to a collection containing that of his father and grandfather. The prince was about to comply when the colonel sharply forbade him, adding: "What value has the signature of an insignificant boy, who does not even know how to write properly?"

Salvation Army Ql- in Luck. Joi: it. Kerr and James Leslie, two wealthy oil men of Bradford, Pa., sat in the lobby of a hotel in Lima, O., the other evening when a Salvation Army girl came in and passed her tambourine. "I'll chip in $5, Jim," said John. "Go, you, Jack," said James. They began tossing $5 bills into the tambourine in turn, then wrote checks for the same amount until the tambourine held $500. "Guess that's enough, Jack; let's stop," said James. "Go you, Jim," said John, and they adjourned.

LACKED QUORUM AT THE MEETING

School Board Adjourned Until Friday Night.

Teachers to Be Elected and the Fire Escape Question Acted On.

REPAIRS ON THE BUILDINGS

The school board did not meet last night on account of no quorum being present, and also as several reports which are to be read before the board had not been finally completed.

The meeting was declared adjourned until Friday night, when a quorum will probably be on hand. At the meeting Friday ten teachers, six white and four colored, will be elected, and improvements to the building discussed.

One matter to be brought up is the condition of the Garfield colored school, which is too small to accommodate the patronage. The Garfield school was inadequate last term and the board will discuss building an addition.

The matter of putting in a fire escape will also be brought up, a Louisville representative still being here in the interest of his company.

The building committee will report that repairs on buildings will place them all in excellent condition.

Superintendent of Buildings Fred Hoyer has been working diligently getting all repairs finished and the buildings will be in tip top shape by September.

EQUIPMENT IN

With the Exception of a Few of [the Guns.

In a Short Time the Paducah Company Will Be Mustered Out.

Captain James Caldwell, of company I, the local state military company, has collected all but three guns and a few odds and ends of equipment from the members of the company and will this week send in the entire lot to Frankfort and ask for the immediate mustering out of the company.

Captain Caldwell has been waiting for all equipment to be turned in or would have had the company mustered out before. He expects an officer here immediately after the receipt of the equipment at Frankfort.

In regard to the city last night deciding to no longer pay for the armory, it stated that a recent bill passed in the legislature makes it compulsory for the county and not the city to stand the expense of an armory, consequently the city has been paying for the armory when the expense should really fall on the county.

MEETING OVER

POSTMAN JESSE CURD ELECTED SERGEANT-AT-ARMS.

Postmen Fred Acker and Jesse G. Curd, of the local postoffice, returned last night from the State Letter Carriers Convention at Louisville.

Most of the business transacted was of a routine nature, and the officers elected for the ensuing year are:

President, D. E. Berry, Covington; vice president, P. O. Foushee, Lexington; secretary, Harry M. King, Newport; treasurer, W. J. Pettit, Louisville; Sergeant-at-Arms, J. G. Curd, Paducah. C. W. Huber will continue in office as delegate to the national convention.

Louisville was chosen as the permanent meeting place, and the convention will take place here next year at the same time.

An amusing feature of the meeting was the report of the treasurer that there was but one cent in the treasury.

Attorney Taylor intended returning sooner but was detained by the illness of his wife, who is now better and will return with him this week.

The work of refunding the $100,000 of county bonds is proceeding as rapidly as possible, and White & Company, the New York firm that will refund them, has written Justice R. J. Barber that the bonds are to be engraved at once at a cost of $150. They wanted the name of County Clerk Gartman engraved, but the committee will decline to permit it, but will insist on the county clerk signing each bond, and coupon, which will necessitate their being sent here to be signed.

THE RAILROADS

MANY SHOW DECREASES FOR THE MONTH PAST.

The gross earnings of the forty-one roads for the third week in June were $7,848,767, against $7,661,584 for the third week in June, 1903, an increase of $187,183. Twenty-five roads show increases and sixteen decreases. Since July 1 the roads referred to above earned $100,957,127, an increase of $11,301,281 over the $89,655,846 reported for the corresponding period last year. For the longer period twenty-eight roads show increases and thirteen decreases.

DEATH OF A CHILD.

Otto, the two weeks' old son of Dr. and Mrs. R. D. Harper, died yesterday afternoon at Adrian, of bowel trouble. The burial took place this morning at 10 o'clock at the St. John's cemetery. The child was a nephew of Attorney A. L. Harper of this city.

—Former Marshal James F. Crow and Mr. F. G. Randolph will probably be among the Democratic candidates for coroner of McCracken county.

NEW KING CROWNED.

CAMBODIA NOW HAS A NEW RULER.

Teheran, July 6.—King Norodom of Cambodia is dead and his successor has assumed the crown with elaborate ceremonies. His new majesty took a name of twenty-seven syllables, setting forth that he is the embodiment of all mortals and the emperor of all emperors.

The five grand officers of the realm, called "wheels of the imperial chariot," assisted at the crowning, which opened with a grand march, during which the king walked under "the seven-story umbrella." When he arrived in the temple he was addressed and publicly washed, an abundance of water being poured on his head and body by priests of various degrees.

Finally the 500 wives of his predecessor came and dressed him anew in the royal clothes and another grand march took place, during which the king thrice changed his headgear from an imposing sugar-loaf hat to a helmet and stovepipe, all of which were adorned with great rubies, diamonds and emeralds.

When he donned the stovepipe all the cannons began booming, and Cambodia knew that a new and mighty monarch had been installed. From that moment on his majesty became a god to his subjects. No one dared address him. It's death to touch him. Only if he sleeps longer than twenty-four hours on a stretch dare the grand vizier empower the chief queen to awaken his majesty by slowly tickling the soles of his feet.

RHEUMATISM JOINTS AND MUSCLES SWOLLEN AND STIFF

A disease so painful and far-reaching in its effects upon the human system as Rheumatism, must have a deep and well-laid foundation. It originates and develops in the blood, and, like other diseases of the blood, is frequently inherited. The poisonous acids with which the blood is charged circulate through the system, breaking down the health, irritating the nerves, settling in joints and muscles, and causing the sharp, cutting pains peculiar to Rheumatism. Unless the blood is purified, joints and muscles become coated with the acid matter and are rendered stiff and sore, and the nerves completely wrecked. Rheumatism, being a constitutional blood disease, requires internal treatment. Liniments, plasters and such things as are applied outwardly, give only temporary relief. S.S.S. is the recognized greatest of all blood purifiers and tonics, and in no disease does it act so promptly and beneficially as Rheumatism, neutralizing the acids and restoring the blood to a pure, healthy condition and invigorating and toning up the nerves and all parts of the system. It is guaranteed strictly vegetable. Write us should you desire medical advice, which will cost you nothing.

A FALLEN IDOL.

A delegation called on Colonel Bryan at St. Louis and asked him "if he was going to support the nominee."
Bryan patted his manly bosom and replied: "I do not ask any persons or party how I shall vote. This is responsible only."Then his interlocutor tragically responded: "Mr. Bryan, I consider that an insult, and I apologize to the Democracy of North Carolina for having cast my vote for you." The delegation immediately went out of the room, leaving Mr. Bryan alone.The Democrats have apparently discovered the true inwardness of their erstwhile idol. They should be able, from the different kinds of a fool he has made of himself as a private citizen, to judge what he would have done as president. And they should congratulate the country because the people who refused to make Mr.
Bryan president used better judgment than those who wanted to make him president.One of the southern delegates at St.
Louis thus soliloquized to the amusement of his companions as Colonel Bryan entered the dining room of the Jefferson hotel: "Oh, yes, William Jennings, we know you. Thou shalt no longer crucify the best interest of the National Democracy on a crown of thorny rot. Thou shalt no longer press down on the brow of fighting Democrats a crown of d— foolishness.
You fooled us awhile, William, but you fool us no longer. We are on to thee, O, William."The city will ask the Illinois Central to build another story to its local passenger depot. It is reported that the board will next ask the government to put another story on the custom house, the wharboat company to build a few more wharves, the Palmer house to put up a roof garden and cupola, and the street car company to equip its cars with orchestras and ice water. When all this is done the city officials should consider the advisability of asking the railroad to put sun bonnets on its engines and the water company to dress up the stand-pipes, which is at present without any more elaborate attire than a coat of paint. Then, if the boards have any time to throw away, they may devotea little attention to the health and comfort of the general public, have the gutters down town cleaned out occasionally, and do something towards getting the improvements for which the people voted $200,000 in bonds nearly a year ago.Something must have gone radically wrong in Bowling, the hub of the universe. The other night derisive crowds actually hanged a judge in effigy because he banished the toy pistol and cannon cracker on Fourth of July. Of course it must have been strangers, who did it while the people were asleep. None of the ultra cultured and refined residents would have done such a vulgar thing.A Democratic paper remarks: "The smoke of the battle at the Chicago convention hasn't cleared away for the good reason that there wasn't any battle." It might quite as candidly—and truthfully—have added that there will not be any battle in November, either. The Republicans will have another walk over then.Just think of it! Little Owensboro has twice as many street lights as big Paducah, and is clamoring for more.
We have less than 200 streets light in Paducah, and feel fortunate if we get light out of them. Owensboro has 360 and isn't satisfied. It takes a great deal to please some people.The Democrats "point with scorn" to the alleged fact that two-thirds of the Republican platform is devoted to a review of what the party has done.
If the Democrats, however, do the subject of what their party hasn't done full justice, there'll be room for nothing else in their platform.Some scientists—all of them seem to have plenty of leisure—should investigate the mystery of the "rejected juror" suicides at Rising Sun, Ind.
No less than three "rejected" in a murder case recently, have since committed suicide. It would appear that some men are badly disappointed when they can't get on a jury.General Miles has something to titillate his vanity to a superlative degree. He has been "mentioned" as a candidate for president on two tickets—the Democratic and Prohibition.
It is difficult to determine on which one a man would have the most show to win.Judge Parker is belatedly reposing in his silent retreat on the Hudson, but he has a voluminous speech written out to deliver if he is nominated.
If he is not, he should turn it over to some historical society as a souvenir of what the country missed.Twenty-five deaths, 1,384 serious injuries, a property loss of $200,000, and lockjaw yet to hear from, is a Fourth of July record that shows young America is still doing business at the old stand.Lige Dowle is mad at King Edward and threatens to take 6000 Zionites to England in gospel ships. They will probably use their wings coming back.People are beginning to wonder if the wind up of the present job of street paving will come before the first part of it wears out.It is regretted that all the Democratic factions at St. Louis can't nominate their candidate. It is a pity to have so much talent going to waste.Less than 200 delegates are attending the Populist National Convention, but as Jo Parker is there, even the other 199 are superfluous.The "fishing camp," peculiar to Louisville, promises to become a rival of Breathitt county in increasing the death rate.This is to be a dull week in Paducah. The legislative boards hold regular sessions.

BIG LOT SALE

THE NORTONVILLE COAL COM-PANY HOLDS ONE SOON.The Nortonville Coal company will hold a big sale of lots at auction at Nortonville on the 20th and 21st of this month. The sale is being extensively advertised and will no doubt be well attended. A number of Paducah people are planning to attend the sale.The Nortonville Coal company has one of the best propositions to refund anywhere. The town has been and is now on a big boom. The coal company is spending a lot of money in developing their coal properties and improving their town in every way and the improvements are healthy and substantial.LAND IS STILL BEING PLAYEDPaducah Catcher, Under Suspension, Ignores Rule.If Paducah Wins Any More Games
They Will Probably Be Lost
By Protest.

THE LATE BASEBALL GOSSIP

President Jackson of the Paducah association, has been playing Land because he says he thinks President Thompson, of the league, has been a little hard on Paducah, and has given the locals the worst of the deal whenever possible. Land has not been reinstated, and the effect of his playing while under suspension, should Paducah happen to win a game, does not seem to worry the local management a bit. In fact, unfortunately nothing seems to.It is argued that Lemon, catcher for Vincennes, and Holycross, pitcher for Cairo, struck umpires Zinkins and Shuster respectively, in games this season, and got off with $5 fines. But this will not alter the fact that Land was suspended, and cannot under the rules play while he is suspended, hence if Paducah wins she will lose, because the other clubs will protest the game, and the president will naturally decide in favor of enforcing his suspension of the Paducah catcher.Land's case was different, because no matter how good and popular a ball player is he, or how unfair Umpire Setley was, his act in striking Setley, a smaller man, in the back as he unsuspectingly arose from dusting off the plate, seems to be regarded by the better class of fans as that of a hilly and a coward, and deserved the condemnation of every lover of fair play and true sport, just as it received the condemnation of President Thompson, of the league.As long as he is under suspension, however, there's no use in Paducah's trying to win, because every game she wins will be given to the opposing club.Secretary Farnbaker is working on Secretary Farrell, of the National Association, for President Jackson, to secure the return of Long to the Paducah team. He telegraphed President Jackson this morning saying he expected something definite by night.Freeman will know his fate in the Southern League by tomorrow and if he does not make good will come back to Paducah.President Jackson stated today that he would have a fast team again within three days as he intended strengthening it.Frank Bassett, an umpire in the Colton States league, passed through the city this morning en route to Hopkinsville. He has three days off Bassett is among the few umpires who made good in the Colton States league. He was manager of the Hopkinsville baseball team last season.

SPOILED MEAT

INSPECTOR HAD A WAGON LOAD
TO EMPTY TODAY.Dr. J. B. Garber, milk and meat inspector, today found in the cold storage on First street a basket of de-cayed meat, which he says was evidently intended for sausage. He was unable to find out who owned it, as the owner, when he found out that there was likely to be trouble, failed to acknowledge his property. This afternoon he had the stuff hauled to the river and dumped in, and if he could have found out the name of the butcher who left it at the cold storage, he stated he would have sworn out a warrant. Inspector Garber says that the cold storage is now through the efforts of Superintendent Frank Ricks, of the ice company, out the butchers, in fine shape.

PETER ICE WAGON BADLY DAMAGED TODAY.One of the H. A. Pette ice wagons, in charge of Jeff Young, was struck by a south Sixth street car this morning about 11 o'clock near Sixth and Elizabeth streets, and badly damaged.Young was going out Sixth street and did not hear the car, which he claims was coming rather fast. His wagon was struck and the mules knocked across the street and into a fence. Young was caught by the brake and could not get loose. A horse was knocked in his right leg, but he escaped serious injury. The wagon was partially demolished and ice was scattered all over the street.

DOES NOT DEFEAT PAVING PROJECT

Council's Action Simply Defers Third Street Work.

Storm Water Sewerage Goes Down at Once—Board of Public Works Meets Tonight.

AND THE PARK AFFAIR

The defeat of the ordinance for paving South Third street to Broad, in the council last night does not mean that the street is not to be paved, but merely that it is not deemed wise to start the work this year.
Instead, an ordinance was passed providing for the storm water sewerage, and this work will be done this year, so the street will have a chance to thoroughly settle. The board of public works was never opposed to paving Third street if the people want it, but did not regard it as advisable to pave it this year.
The regular meeting of the board of public works will be held tonight, and a number of things will come up for discussion. The matter of extending Contractor Terrell's time to August 2 will probably be passed on, and as the work isn't finished, the time will probably be extended again, as it has been every time a request has been made since the work was begun nearly a year ago.
Another park committee has been appointed by the board, but it will probably do nothing but waste its time as other committees have done. The general opinion in Paducah seems to be that if the general council wants to establish a park, it can make Yelver park answer all purposes. The last formal report of a park committee of the general council, made a year or more ago, was in favor of the brilliant project of buying property for a city park about a mile beyond the Arcadia park line, to reach which there was no way except to go in buggies or walk, and wanted the street car company to extend its line and thus divert business from its own park.

The ordinance against sweeping trash is being violated again every day, despite the orders of the mayor to enforce it. The board of public works may tonight take some action and appoint an inspector to do nothing but keep watch and swear out warrants against all who violate it.

ORIGINAL IDEA

Is That of the City Solicitor About Enlarging the Depot.

Wants Another Story Added and Sheds on Each Side.

Solicitor Ed. Pnyear thinks that the local Illinois Central passenger depot is too small to accommodate the passenger. In addition to enlarging it, he will urge that sheds be built on both sides. This is Solicitor Pnyear's original idea, and he feels confident that it will be endorsed in the upper boards as it was last night by the council.
Solicitor Pnyear stated this morning that he had investigated personally and often heard other people say the depot was too small, and that the absence of a shed to protect the patronage from the weather inconvenienced the public a great deal, and he decided to take steps to have it remedied. Last night he presented a letter to the council asking that it be ratified, which was done. In the letter he urged the officials of the I. C. to build another story to the depot and build a shed on both sides. He is not particularly desirous of having another story added but wants the depot enlarged, and the shed built.

Misses Louise Graham and Katherine Hughes of Louisville, will arrive Monday to visit Misses Fannie and Della Coleman, at their home on West Jefferson street.

Between Seasons.

These are the days of re-organization of house-furnishing stocks. The Spring buying is over, and many folks are leaving for the summer. July particularly is apt to be quiet in business circles.

So, then, we have arranged so there will be no quiet July for this store. Listen:

In order that our volume of business for July be as great as the average for other months, in order that our working force may be just as busy as during other months, we will during July make most unusual price inducements. We won't cut our profit out entirely, but will share it with you; and you can rest assured that prices will be just as low as conservative merchandising will permit.

Of course, lines will be broken in short order in a trade move like this, so we suggest that you call early while choosing is good.

You can get some idea of the money saving chances by reading carefully our advertisements or calling in person and inspecting our stock and prices. You are always welcome at the BIG STORE.

☐ Hicks on July ☐

A summary of the weather conditions for July as figured out by Rev. Irl R. Hicks, follows:

This month begins in the last stage of a storm period central on June the 20. Storm and perturbations of this period will be well on their way toward the Atlantic by the 1st and 2d, with fair and cooler weather following from the west.

A reactionary storm period is central from the 4th to the 6th. As the moon is on the celestial equator on the 4th, we may reasonably calculate on a decided rise in temperature, ending in thunder and rain-storms during these reactionary days.

If the general tendency is to excessive heat and light rains from the 4th to 6th, and from the 9th to 14th, it will be safe to count on a predominance of such weather nearly or quite up to September.

Upon the other hand, should cooler weather and general rains and storms be the rule at these periods, much of the same kind of weather will characterize all the storm periods for the following six or eight weeks.

About the 11th to 14th, the central dates of the second July storm period, no one should be surprised by a wave of excessive warm weather, culminating in many threatening storms and violent dangerous blustering.

Heavy hail storms, especially to the west and north, will most likely attend these disturbances, in which event temporary change to much cooler may naturally be expected.

On and touching the 15th, 16th and 19th warm wave with threatening storm clouds and some rain and hail.

A regular Vulcan storm period covers the 21st to the 24th. Another very warm wave, attended by storm conditions, with some rain and severe bluster, may be expected. A brief partial respite from great warmth will probably succeed the disturbances of this period.

On and touching the 27th and 28th reactionary storm conditions will return with more than ordinary intensity.

Great warmth will, in every probability, reach a climax on and next to these dates. This is also a time when many seismic disturbances may naturally be expected—probably not dangerous or destructive in any place, but quite general along the sensitive earthquake zones of the globe.

STATE CROPS

Rain Has Been of Great Benefit to Them.

Farm Work Well Up—Harvesting of Wheat Completed.

The following is a summary of crop conditions throughout the state:

"The temperature averaged considerably below the normal during the week. Local showers occurred over the greater portion of the state, and in some places the rainfall was heavy. Some slight damage was done by flooding lowlands, but nothing of importance was reported. The rains were very timely and have improved the general condition of crops quite decidedly.

"The harvesting of wheat is nearly completed; the yield promises to be much better than was expected, and the quality excellent. In some localities the continued wet weather has caused sprouting in the shock, but the extent of this damage is not great.

"Tobacco is all set and is generally growing well. The acreage is less than usual on account of a scarcity of plants in some sections.

"Corn is good color and looks vigorous, but the nights have been too cool for rapid growth.

"Oats have improved, and, though headed low, look quite promising. Cutting will begin this week.

"Garden truck and Irish potatoes are in first class condition.

"Fruit does not promise well. Apples are dropping badly in many places and are knotty and irregular. In some localities peaches are rotting on the trees. Blackberries are very promising.

"Pastures and meadows have improved quite decidedly. The meadows are rather weedy, but the yield will be better than expected.

"Hemp looks well and is making a good growth.

"Considerable millet has been sown and is coming up well.

"In a few localities farm work has been delayed to some extent by frequent rains but is generally well up."

DEADLY SNAKES

BITE OF THE COBRA IS FATAL, BUT THE SERPENT IS A BEAUTY.

The cobra, or capello, which kills from 20,000 to 25,000 people a year in India, is one of the most beautiful creatures you ever saw. With a crest a yard and a half long his keeper arouses this most deadly of all serpents, which lifts its head eighteen inches from the ground, and standing perfectly erect, expands its neck into a hood—as seen in the tales of Indian juggling. The two greenish yellow spots, one on each side, look like enormous eyes. The snake is ready for a strike. Its bite is sure death in eight minutes. Science has found no antidote for it. In striking, the head goes downward and forward, not straight out. The fangs are permanently erect, not movable as in the rattlesnake.

Snares never close their eyes, because they have no eyelids. Light is shut out by contraction of the pupil and admitted by its expansion. A rattlesnake's fangs are among the curiosities of the creation. Each has its individual poison sack, located at the base, and the contents are forced out by the act of striking prey or an enemy. The fangs, two in number, are hinged to the inside of the upper jawbone. Suspended from the outer side of the bone are four rudimentary fangs—four on each side of the head, which constitute his serpentine majesty's reserve. He often breaks a big fang, and immediately the nearest of the four little ones works around to the inside of the jawbone to take the place of the broken one, while another delicate, threadlike instrument of murder grows on the extreme outer edge of the jaw. Thus there are always ten fangs, two ready for business, eight in various stages of embryo.—New York Press.

The Blazed Trail

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE

"It is not for sale," answered Thorpe. "We'll waive all that. Of course it is to your interest to make difficulties and run the price up as high as you can. But my time is somewhat occupied just at present, so I would be very glad to hear your top price. We will come to an agreement afterward."

"You do not understand me, Mr. Morrison. I told you the price is not for sale, and I mean it."

"But surely. What did you buy it for, then?" asked Mr. Morrison, with evidence of a growing excitement.

"We intend to manufacture it."

Mr. Morrison's face nearly popped out of his head. He controlled himself with an effort.

"Mr. Thorpe," said he, "let us try to be reasonable. Our case stands this way: We have gone to a great deal of expense on the Des Moines tract in expectation of undertaking very extensive operations there. To that end we have cleared the stream, built three dams and have laid the foundations of a harbor and basin. This has been very expensive. Now, your purchase includes most of what we had meant to log. You have, roughly speaking, about 300,000,000 in your holding, in addition to which there are several millions scattered near it which would pay no body but yourself to get in. Our holdings are farther up stream and can be sold only at the small price of 10 cents."

"These hundred millions are not to be squeezed out," replied Thorpe.

"Certainly not," agreed Morrison, smiling, gaining confidence in the soundness of his own case. "Not in this country. But you must remember that a man goes into the northern peninsula only because he can get something better there than here. When the time of Morrison and his associates comes it must be for the last time. We want enough timber to last us for the rest of the time we are in business."

"In that case you will have to hunt up another locality," replied Thorpe calmly.

Morrison's eyes flashed, but he retained his appearance of gentleness and appeared to Wallace Carpenter.

"Then you will retain the advantage of our dam and improvements?" said he. "Is that fair?"

"No, not on the face of it," admitted Thorpe. "But you did your work in a navigable stream for private purposes without the consent of the board of control. Your presence on the river is illegal. You should have taken out a charter as an improvement company. Then as long as you attended to business and kept the concern in repair we would have paid you a toll per thousand feet. As soon as you let it slide, however, the works would revert to the state. I would hinder your doing that yet, although I might. Take out your charter and fix your rate of toll."

"In other words, you force us to stay there and run a little two by four lumbering company for your benefit or else lose the value of our improvements?"

"Suits yourself," answered Thorpe, calmly. "You can always log your present holdings."

"Very well," cried Morrison, so suddenly in a passion that Wallace started back. "It's war! And let me tell you this, young man, you're a new concern, and we're an old one. We'll crush you like that!" He crumpled an envelope violently and threw it in the waste-basket.

"Crush ahead," replied Thorpe, with great good humor. "Goodly, Mr. Morrison. And the two went out."

Wallace was smiling and trembling with nervous excitement. His was one of those temperaments which required action to relieve the stress of a stormy interview. He wanted to do something at once. "Hadden's better see a lawyer?" he asked. "Rightly so, to be sure, but they don't take some of our cases? Rightly so?"

"You just leave all that to me," replied Thorpe. "The first thing we want to do is to make some money."

"And you can leave that to me," cried Wallace. "I know a little of such things, and I have business connections who know more. You just get the camp running."

"I'll start for Day City tonight," submitted Thorpe. "There ought to be a good lot of lumber jacks lying around here at this time of year, and it's a good place to outfit from, because we can probably get freight rates direct by boat. We'll be a little late in starting, but we'll get in some logs this winter anyway."

CHAPTER XV.

NOW, in August, however, the first of the season had died. The "Juni" had rolled into town, "taken it apart" and left the inhabitants to piece it together again as they could. The "Juni" had not yet arrived. As a consequence Thorpe found the city comparatively quiet.

Although his plans were not as yet formulated, he hoped to be able to pick up a crew of first class men from those who had come down with the advance, or "Juni," of the spring's drive. They should have finished their rigging by now and, empty of pocket, should be found hanging about the boarding houses and the quieter saloons. Thorpe intended to offer good wages for good men. He would not need more than twenty at first, for during the up-pushing winter he intended to log on a very small scale indeed. The time for expansion would come later.

With this object in view he set out from his hotel about half past seven on the day of his arrival to cruise about in the lumber-jack district. The hotel clerk had obligingly given him the names of a number of the quieter saloons where the boys "hang out" between bursts of prosperity. In the first of these Thorpe was helped unceremoniously in his vague and uncertain quest by encountering an old acquaintance, Jackson Hines.

"The old man peered at Thorpe. 'Don't you know me?' inquired Thorpe."

"Know you? You bet I do. How are you, Harry? Where have you been keeping yourself? You look about as fat as a still fed kitten!"

"I've been hard looking in the upper peninsula," explained Thorpe, "on the Des Moines tract, up in the Marquette country."

"She!" commented Jackson in wonder. "Way up there where the moon changes?"

"It's a fine country," went on Thorpe, as every one could hear, "with a great cutting of white pine. It runs as high as twelve hundred thousand to the forty square miles."

"How clean air free of timber?" asked Jackson.

"They're as good as the stuff over on Des Moines. You remember that?"

"Then as a baby's leg," agreed Jackson.

"Have a glass of beer?" asked Thorpe.

"Try as a tobacco box," confessed Jackson.

So they did drink.

On a sudden inspiration Thorpe resolved to ask the old man's advice as to how to proceed. It might not be good for him, but it would do no harm.

Jackson listened intently to the other's brief recital.

"Why don't you see Tim Shearer? He ain't doing nothing since the Jim came down," was his comment.

"Isn't he with the M. & D. people?" asked Thorpe.

"Nope. Quit."

"How's that?"

"Tim of Morrison. He's been filling his teeth for M. & D. right along. Something behind it all, I reckon."

"Where'll I find him?" asked Thorpe.

Jackson gave the name of a small boarding house. Shortly after Thorpe left him to cruise the others with his unique conversation and hunted up Shearer's stopping place.

The boarding house proved to be of the typical lumber-jack class, a narrow, one-story, a hallway and stairs in the center and an office and bar on either side. Shearer and a half dozen other men about his own age sat, their chairs on two legs and their "cork" boots on the rounds of the chairs, smoking placidly in the tepid evening air. He approached and attempted an identifying scrutiny. The men, with the taciturnity of their class in the presence of a stranger, said nothing.

"Well, huh," finally drawled a voice from the corner, "blowed that stick you made out of hawkeye yet?"

"That you, Shearer?" inquired Thorpe, advancing. "You're the man I'm looking for."

"You've found me," replied the old man dryly.

Thorpe was requested elaborately to "shake hands" with the owners of six names. Then he had a chance to talk privately to Shearer that he wanted a word with him alone. The river man rose silently and led the way up the straight, uncarpeted stairs, alone a narrow, uncarpeted hall, to a square, uncarpeted bedroom. The walls and ceiling of this apartment were of unpainted planed pine. It contained a cheap bureau, one chair and a bed and was intended to match the bureau. Shearer sat in the lamp and sat on the bed.

"What is it?" he asked.

"I have a little pine up in the northern peninsula within walking distance of Marquette," said Thorpe, "and I want to get a crew of about twenty men. It occurred to me that you might be willing to help me."

The river man frowned steadily at his interlocutor from under his bushy brows.

"How much pine you got?" he asked finally.

"About 200,000,000," replied Thorpe quietly.

The old man's blue eyes fixed themselves with unwavering steadiness on Thorpe's face.

"You're joking some of it, eh?" he submitted finally as the only probable conclusion. "Do you think you know enough about it? Who does it belong to?"

"It belongs to a man named Carpenter and myself."

The river man pondered this slowly for an appreciable interval, and then shot out another question:

NAPOLEON, As Seen by His Associates

JOSEPHINE DE BEAUHARNAIS

(Copyright, 1904, by G. L. Kilmer.)

XXII.

A STUDY of the man Napoleon is necessarily one-sided unless the disturbing elements in his environment are given due prominence. Josephine de Beauharnais holds a conspicuous place in the annals of Napoleon's court, and the pathos of the role usually assigned her—that of a wronged woman—appeals strongly to readers who interpret history by the aid of sentiment. It is plain that if Josephine had borne a son to Napoleon, other things being equal, she would be as little known to the world of today as is his second wife, Maria Louisa, mother of Napoleon III.

Mme. de Beauharnais, a lifelong friend of Josephine, written of her first marriage and widowhood as follows:

"The Marquis de Beauharnais, father of the first husband of Mme. Bonaparte, having been employed in a military capacity at Murlinque, became attached to an aunt of Mme. Bonaparte, with whom he returned to France and whom he married in his old age."

"This aunt brought her niece, Josephine, to France. She had her education and made use of her ascendancy over her aged husband to marry her niece, at the age of fifteen years, to young Beauharnais, her stepson. Of this marriage were born Eugene and Hortense. When the revolution began, Beauharnais' love for his wife had cooled. At the commencement of the Terror M. de Beauharnais had no longer any relations with his wife."

"I do not know under what circumstances she became acquainted with certain dupes of the convention, but she had some influence with them, and as she was kind, lovable and obliging, she used it to do a much good to as many people as possible. From that time her reputation for good conduct was very much damaged, but her kindness, her grace and the sweetness of her manners could not be disputed."

"Her husband, Beauharnais, being suspected by the Jacobins, had been thrown into prison in Paris and condemned to death by the revolutionary tribunal. She also was imprisoned, but escaped the guillotine. Being a friend of the beautiful Mme. Tallien, she was introduced into the society of the directory and was especially favored by Barras. Mme. de Beauharnais had very little fortune, and her taste for dress and luxury rendered her dependent on those who could help her to indulge it. Without being precisely pretty, she possessed many personal charms."

"She was not a person of remarkable intellect. A facile and frivolous, but the less worn Josephine, she must cease troubling me henceforth. I relinquish all claims to her in favor of Napoleon, my hostler."

"It is due to my having been in prison with her previous to the 9th Thermidor overthrow of Robespierre that I know her so intimately. Such an intimacy would be unpardonable in a man restored to liberty."

Barras himself admits having maintained a liaison with Josephine after she left prison and says that she pleaded with him to resume it while she was Mme. Bonaparte.

After her release from prison the widow Beauharnais was first wooed by Napoleon. Announcing the engagement to a friend, she wrote: "You have seen General Bonaparte at my house. Well, it is he who is good enough to act as stepfather to the orphan of Alexander de Beauharnais, his husband to his widow. Do you love him? You ask me, No. . . . I do not. Then you dislike him? No, but my state is one of repulsion toward him which is displeasing to me, and which, from a religious point of view, would shock the good people."

On another occasion, after reading a most considerate as well as ardent letter from Napoleon, she exclaimed: "What an odd creature Bonaparte is!"

This much of the widow of M. Beauharnais. Baron de Meneval, private secretary of Napoleon, whose memoirs give an inside view of the palace, writes as follows of Josephine as empress:

"Josephine had an irresistible attraction. She was not a woman of regular beauty. She had that grace which is more beautiful than beauty's self, she had the soft abundant, the simple and elegant movements, the graceful negligence of a Creole woman."

"The emperor had loved her much since the wife of his glory as much as she had loved his person. She was fond of luxury and extravagance perhaps more than her spirit of charity should have warranted, for her extravagance often made it impossible for her to satisfy her charitable aims."

Of this period Mme. de Beauharnais, also a witness in the palace, says:

"Notwithstanding the wishes of her husband, she could never submit to either order or etiquette in her private life. She had a perfect mania for being painted and gave her pictures to whoever wanted them—relations, friends, femmes de chambre and even to her tradespeople."

"She rose at 11 o'clock. Her toilet consumed much time. A part of it was entirely private, when she lavished unwearying efforts on the preservation of her person and on its embellishment, with the aid of paint and powder. She never opened a book, she never took up a pen and never touched a needle, and yet she never seemed to be in the least bored."

Napoleon said at St. Helena: "Josephine was grace personified. Everything she did was with a peculiar grace and delicacy. I never saw her act indecantly during the whole time we lived together. Her toilet was a perfect art, and she effectively defended herself against the assaults of time."

The "indiscretions" of the widow Beauharnais did not end, it seems, when she became Mme. Bonaparte. One historian declares that within a year after this marriage Napoleon "dismissed from his headquarters several of Josephine's lovers." The sequel to one of these dismissals is related by the Duchesse d'Angoulême, Napoleon's granddaughter, who, as a lady of the castle might have done in the days of yore, while her lord and master set forward to deliver the tomb of Christ. Then, as now, there were always a page, an eunuch, a nephew and sometimes even a good abbe.

M. Charles inhabited Malmesbury in the quality of a master. Friends, we know, have privileges. Gohier, a rival to Napoleon in the directory crisis, strongly persuaded her to a decided step. "Divorce," said he when, all in tears, she refused the advice to break off a connection which would compromise her in the eyes of the world. "Divorce. You tell me it is only friendship that exists between M. Charles and yourself, but if that friendship is so influential that it impels you to violate the observance of the world I shall say to you, as if it were love—divorce!"

"When, after his return from Egypt, Bonaparte was on the point of himself effecting what Gohier advised, Josephine screamed, wept and was in despair. She would not hear of a divorce when he was at a distance. Much less could she endure it when the resplendency of his unflinching glory illuminated all Europe with its rays. But in consenting to surrender her proposal Bonaparte exacted as an absolute condition the banishment of M. Charles." Yet M. Charles was not banished. GEORGE L. KILMER.

JOSEPHINE DE BEAUHARNAIS (After a miniature by Bocher.)

education had been a good deal neglected, but she recognized her deficiencies and never made blunders in conversation. She possessed a natural tact; she readily found pleasant things to say. Her memory was good—a useful quality for those in high position. Unhappily, she was deficient in depth of feeling and elevation of mind. She preferred to charm by her beauty rather than the influence of certain virtues."

Other writers say bluntly what Mme. de Beauharnais said in a letter—that Josephine's aunt lived openly with the old marquis and that the widowed niece damaged "her" "the color for good conduct" in numerous ways.

"A beautiful M. de Beauharnais was simply a French M. de Beauharnais. One of the attracted to him, the quite friendly two-thirds to the house of Widow Beauharnais was the fact that he met there men of influence in the government. Frederic Masson explains that men of position did indeed call there, but as 'hangers-on' and that their wives did not visit the widow."

Among Josephine's influential acquaintances at the time were General Hoche, the most prominent soldier in France, and Barras, a powerful member of the directory.

Barras says in his memoirs that Josephine urged Hoche to get a divorce from his wife in order to marry her. Hoche on one occasion said to Josephine, "A man might for the time being indulge in having a trull as his mistress, but not for that take her unto himself as his lawful wife."

Hoche accused the widow of intimacies with his own aide-de-camp, also with his hostler, and, writing to Barras of her persistent attentions, said: "As to Rose (one of her baptismal names) used by her familiars and for which Napoleon substituted

What the German Thought Of the Fisherman's Tale

A FISHERMAN stopping at the house of a well-to-do and educated German referred to the inability of the average German to appreciate an American joke, yet the American was quick to catch on to any of the jokes given out in the Fliegende Blätter and other German comic publications. The German disputed this statement and said, "Germans are just as quick to understand a joke as anybody else."

"Well," said the fisherman, "here's one. We had down in our country a farmer with such big feet that when he went to bed nights he had to go out into the forks of the road and use them for a bootjack to pull off his boots."

"The German never cracked a smile. 'I told you so,' said the fisherman. 'Vat a minute, just,' said the German, 'so I see whether I can understand correctly. You say that you know a man vat makes a bootjack at ready of de forks of de road to pull mit his boots off, he such big feet got?'"

"Yes," said the fisherman.

"You mean by de forks of de road vere de road one goes dis way and de other dat way, a fork making?"

Clerk Could Not Skip.

The reading of a long appropriation bill in either house of congress is invariably a most tedious proceeding for members, and equally tiresome for the clerks. Consequently when there is a slim senate or house and a large session of the bill without any committee amendments it is customary for experienced clerks to skip a few words or paragraphs or even pages here and there to facilitate consideration. Happily there is no objection to this practice, but one of the appropriation bills in the senate this week proved an exception to the rule.

"Mr. President," exclaimed Mr. Bacon of Georgia suddenly, "I would like to ask where the clerk is reading. I have been unable to follow the reading of the bill."

The clerk announced the exact page and line and continued reading. Hardly three minutes later a similar inquiry came from Mr. Culberson of Texas, directly next to Mr. Bacon.

"Mr. President," he exclaimed in a shrill voice, "I am unable to find the place where the clerk is now reading, and would like to be informed."

The clerk proceeded in his clear, resonant voice, and because of the interest of so many senators in the text of the bill had to break senate procedure and read every word of the bill from that time on—Washington Times.

Half past three the clock recorded. It was getting time to quit.

Casey felt his belt a-creasing—supper time was drawing near.

Saying this, his feet he planted firmly in the well packed earth.

To the plate the ball came sailing. Casey squared it on his back.

Out it soared toward the palings, leaped the fence and made a snark.

Round the bases Casey sauntered. His homer had won the game.

And wiped out a stain which long had been disgraceful to his name.

The contract with Architect W. L. Brainerd who agrees to furnish plans for the new city hospital and superintend the work for 5 per cent of the cost of the building, was ratified. The action of the mayor in giving the Gamewell electric company a $1,000 note, part payment on the storage battery recently installed in Central station, was ratified. The money set aside in the appropriation ordinance for fire improvements proved too small and a portion of the cost of the new storage battery has to be paid by note payable in one year. Six hundred and thirty-five dollars will be paid in cash.

Complaint was filed by George Ripley regarding bad drainage where the street is being built running near the Bell spoke factory from Third to Fourth streets.

Mayor Yeiser was ordered to notify the owners of the armory property that the city would pay rent no longer, the local company to be notified.

The report of Treasurer Dorian, showing balance June 1 $1,961.06, collections June $56,590.20, disbursements $81,978.50 leaving a balance of $39,472.76 on hand, was received and filed.

Fifty dollars was allowed Dr. Lillard Sanders as damages to his buggy which was backed off the street into a deep gutter improperly protected. An allowance of $37 was made the Commercial club for entertaining sailors on the Lawrence.

First passage was given the ordinance providing for storm water sewers on Third street from Kentucky avenue to Jones street.

The ordinance for the reconstruction of Third street to Broad was killed, those supporting the measure being only McCarthy, Reikopf, Taylor and Watson.

First passage was given the ordinance providing for connecting gutter, sewer, etc., on Third street from Kentucky avenue to Broad street before the paving work begins next year.

First passage was given the ordinance providing for the auditor giving bond, and for putting in storm water sewers on Kentucky avenue from First to Ninth streets.

The ordinance abolishing the office of milk and meat inspector was lost by a tie vote. Councilman Smedley was absent and Ingram had been excused and the vote stood 5 to 5.

Those supporting the measure to abolish the office were Hannan, Jackson, Gilson, Riglesberger and Watson.

A petition for pavements on Clark from Ninth to Tenth was referred to the board of public works.

The petition for improving Bachman street was referred on account of improper drafting.

The water company was ordered to extend its mains on Eighth from Hannan to Norton streets.

Sixty-four semi-annual saloon licenses were renewed, and a new license granted. G. W. Schulte, at 16th and Tennessee streets, Win. Greek was also granted a license to operate a saloon on Kentucky avenue between First and Second streets.

FIRE HORSES ARE HARD TO PROCURE

Commissioners and Fire Chief Becoming Anxious.

Only a Certain Kind of Horses Will Do for the Fire Stations.

MANY HAVE BEEN REJECTED

While the fire and police commissioners have felt little fear of failing to secure fire horses for the new stations, they are now getting a trifle anxious, and find it quite a hard matter to secure what they want in horse flesh.

Fire Chief James Woods is assisting the commissioners in inspecting the horses, and stated this morning relative to the requirements: "We want horses of good breed and they must be between 6 and 8 years old. We want none younger than six nor older than 8 and would like to get stock weighing from eleven to twelve hundred pounds. They must be in the neighborhood of 16 hands high, and thus far, out of about a dozen, we have been unable to secure a single one that suited. Those who have horses to sell do not have much of an idea of the size, or of what we want, and a number of the horses brought in would not justify a second glance."

Chief Woods stated that after the apparatus arrived for the new stations, it would require but little time to get the entire local fire facilities working in harmony.

HEALTHY MOTHERS.

Mothers should always keep in good bodily health. They owe it to their children. Yet it is no unusual sight to see a mother, with babe in arms, coughing violently and exhibiting all the symptoms of a consumptive tendency. And why should this dangerous condition exist, dangerous alike to mother and child, when Dr. Doan's German Syrup would put a stop to it at once? No mother should be without this old and tried remedy in the house—for its timely use will promptly cure any lung, throat or bronchial trouble in herself or her children. The worst cough or cold can be speedily cured by German Syrup; so can hoarseness and congestion of the bronchial tubes. Comfort Swing Chair
Made entirely of metal and fancy colored canvas. The material is light and firmly braced, finished in black enamel. Folds compactly, occupying space of only 4 1/2 inches. Is set up or folded by removing only four stove bolts. Perfectly simple.

Solid Comfort
In the Comfort Chair. There's no argument necessary—it's simply a fact. Sitting or reclining. Swinging or not. Just good old Comfort. Put the chair anywhere. You don't need a great big lawn with trees or a great big anything. Any little shady corner will do. You can put the chair where the shade is and move it if the shade moves. The independent standards which are a part of the chair do it all.

Suppose you call and see it. You do not need to buy—But you probably will—other people do. Because the price is only $3.50.
